

HAVE YOU DANCED IT YET—THE MAXIXE?

The Newest Dance of Them All Described by Maurice, the World's Greatest Dancing Teacher.

The Maxixe—the newest and most popular dance of the year—is the national dance of Brazil, just as the tango is the national dance of Argentina. Like the tango, it is a graceful and wholly unobjectionable dance when properly executed. In this article I have tried to describe a form of the dance which is easy to learn and which could be danced in any ballroom with perfect propriety.
Any good two-step music gives the proper time for the dance.
In the first position the gentleman places his left arm around the lady's waist as far as he can, she facing him, his left and her right hand being outstretched as in the old waltz position. The gentleman's left foot is far advanced, resting on the heel, with the toe raised and the knee bent. The first step brings the right foot up to the left and the second step advances the left again. This two-step is repeated eight times, the lady dancing backwards.
The second figure is an ordinary two-step, with long strides and a swaying motion of the body from the waist up.
The steps of the third figure are a repetition of those of the first, but the position is entirely novel. The gentleman's left foot is flat on the floor and his hands are outstretched in front of him, holding his partner's hands. She assumes a similar position and seems trying to pull away from him as far as possible. There are eight measures of this step, followed by the most picturesque figure of the maxixe.
In this, the fourth figure, the lady stands with her hands resting on her chest, and the gentleman stands behind her, with his arms encircling her and his hands clasping hers. In time with the music they two-step eight beats to the left, while the gentleman brings the lady's hands down, outward and then up over her head till the palms touch. The hands should be in this position on the eighth beat. Then the couple two-step eight beats to the right, reversing the movement of the arms, so that they are brought back again to the original position. Again they two-step to the left, repeating the upward circling movement of the hands, and at the end of the eighth beat the gentleman turns the lady completely around so that she faces him. His left hand still holds her right in the air, and his right holds her left behind her back. In this position they dance eight large two-steps.
Then, still holding his partner's left in his right, the gentleman releases her right and takes it again in front of them, as shown in figure 1. In the position there shown, bringing the rear foot up to the forward foot and advancing the forward foot again, the couple dances six measures.

Then they change hands again, assuming the posture of figure 2, and dance eight two-steps as in the fourth position. But this time right arms go down as the right foot moves, and the left arms go down and the right up as the left foot moves. This dance is repeated for four more bars, with the lady facing the gentleman, the arms still outstretched.
There follows one movement from the tango. Still facing the lady, with his right foot diagonally forward of left, the gentleman draws his right foot back of the left, brings the left back to it and then steps backward with it into the original position. Then he brings the left back of the right and close to it and bends the right knee. The lady, of course, follows with opposite foot movement. Then she turns her back to the gentleman and, putting his left hand around her waist, dances five long two-steps with her.
To conclude the dance there may be a repetition of the fifth figure.
It will be seen from this article that the dance is splendid exercise. But it is graceful, as well, and much simpler than you would think on first reading the description.

"THE JUDGMENT."
A two-reel story of Puritan days, written by Richard V. Spencer. The story contains an old mixture of scenes similar to those in "The Scarlet Letter" and "A Tale of Two Cities". The sub-title, "It is a far, far better rest that I go to than I have ever known." The scenes in this photoplay are true to the period depicted and a good story is thrown on the screen.
At Surprise theater today with a Keystone comedy, "Love Sickness at Sea".

THE RED ROSE.
Theatergoers will probably welcome John C. Fisher's musical comedy success "The Red Rose," which comes to the Oliver Friday evening. So much has been written about this truly delightful entertainment all left to be said is that it is a skilful fabrication of color, tunes, feminine pulchritude and clever dances. Its "Arts Ball" scene is gorgeous, and the costumes are a prism, radiating all the colors of the rainbow. It is a colorful, tuneful, delightful dancing entertainment on a grand scale.

FRANCIS SAYLES PLAYERS.
The first three days of the Francis Sayles Players at the Auditorium has proven a great success and their production of "The Lion and the Mouse" is proving one of the greatest successes ever seen here by a stock organization, each member of the company making a personal hit in the part. The first matinee of the engagement will be given today.
Starting next Monday night a country store will be given each Monday night when many handsome presents will be given away.
Next Sunday afternoon and for the balance of the week the company will appear in Henry Miller's and Margaret Anglin's greatest success "The Great Divide."

"QUO VADIS."
Women and children are particularly interested in George Kleine's mammoth photo-drama production "Quo Vadis," which is to be the important attraction at the Oliver all next week, with daily matinees. The women revel in the beautiful love story that is unfolded in the charming Sienkiewicz romance while the children appreciate its vast aid to their study of Roman history and take particular delight in the great spectacular features—the burning of Rome, the chariot races, combats of the gladiators and thrilling experience of the Christians when thrown to the hungry lions in the arena—and the grown-up children, the men, seem to enjoy it as much as their wives and offspring. It has a wonderful appeal to all society and is doing a remarkable business.

SPEAKER ADVISES ON MONEY SPENDING
Five Cents Now and Then Will Buy a New Rug, Dan Pyle Tells Kaley Civic Members.

"Spending Your Money" was the title of Atty. Dan Pyle's talk before the Kaley Civic club Tuesday night. He demonstrated that there were two classes of money-getters in the world, those that worked hard for their wage and those that had something to sell or owned some device that earned for them their wealth.
"Use caution when you are investing your money," he said. "See that it is being put into something that will return full value. Stay away from mining stocks, corporation stocks, and the like until you find that they are safe investments. By systematic saving a man can pay his life insurance and not feel the added expense that would otherwise ensue. Drop five cents into a toy bank every day and buy a new rug at the end of the year."
Mrs. George Baker gave a vocal solo, and Mrs. Coomer and Mrs. Hamey entertained with a vocal quartet. The "Charge of the Light Brigade" was recited by Miss Gertrude Beyer and other music was furnished by the Housekeeper Boys' band. There were about 300 in attendance at this meeting.

Elkhart Man Charges Battery Was Used and Has Warrants Issued for Niles Men.

NILES, Mich., Dec. 3.—Warrants were issued Tuesday for the arrest of Joseph Fisher and Theodore Hanish, proprietors of the Oakwood cigar store, charging them with operating a gaming house. The complaint was made by John Oaches of Elkhart, who claims that he lost $40 on a roulette wheel and that he afterward took the wheel apart and found that it was operated with an electric battery. With three Elkhart men he proceeded to the county seat and after a conference with the prosecuting attorney, the warrants were ordered issued.
